It has been the favorite method of attack by the professional pacifist, who would disarm the United States in what he claims it the interest of world peace, to charge that those sound Americans who do not agree with him are favorable to war and are seeking to make the United States a militaristic nation. Nothing could be further from the truth, and it is coming to be pretty generally recognized that the real sound, constructive pacifist, who would keep Uncle Sam at peace with the world is the man or woman who believes in adequate prepardness for defense. The assertion of George Washington that the best way to assure peace is to be prepared for attack was never truer than today.

An illustration of the soundness of the statement that the real agent of peace is the citizen who believes in adequate defense is found in a recent stirring address delivered before a notable audience under the auspices of the Cameron Club at Alexandria, Virginia, by Senator Arthur R. Robinson, of Indiana, one of the statesmen of our upper national legislative body who can always be found on the side of sound, constructive nationalism.

Senator Robinson presented his audience with some striking statistics on the terrible losses which came to America because of the World War. In addition to the loss of life in battle and the expenditure of billions of dollars the Senator stated that at this time, thirteen years after the signing of the armistice, we have not yet reached the peak of disability, so terrific is war in the modern sense. Sixty thousand Americans he declared, left buried and awaiting the Judgment Day on foreign soil and there are sixty-three veterans' hospitals, in nearly every state in the Union, with 150,000 beds all occupied, and with huge waiting lists in addition. This, he added, does not begin to tell the story of human sacrifice and suffering, while on the material side there is depression and a money loss which will finally mount to a hundred billion dollars.

All of which ought to indicate that Senator Robinson, himself an ex-service man, is not a militarist in any sense of the word. Yet, he declared in the same address, while we do not want war, and recognize it as a terrible thing, the way to avoid such suffering in the future is to be prepared to defend our land against it, so that other nations will hesitate to attack us. International agreements, when the crisis comes, are futile things as the recent events in Manchuria will prove to us.

No sane person in the United States wants war or desires that our country engage in war. Yet every sane person who studies the world situation carefully must realize that, as the richest nation in the world. If we destroy our defensive armament and depend on international agreements entirely, we will only invite attack, at the first opportunity, from some nation which does not place its faith in scraps of paper. Equitable reduction of armament by world-wide agreement, is of course much to be desired, although not to be confidently expected at any time in the near future. But to advocate that Uncle Sam sink his navy, abandon his army and abolish military training as a pacific example to the rest of the world is, charitably speaking in the present state of world feeling.

We were not prepared to defend ourselves at the beginning of the World War. Had we been adequately prepared it is possible that some of the terrible loss which Senator Robinson so graphically described, might have been avoided. And there is today, as Senator Robinson recognizes, no sane argument against adequate prepardness for defense. The men and women who advocate such prepardness are the real constructive pacifists of America.

ESCAPE INJURY IN BAD SMASH-UP ON BAY SHORE HIWAY

Dr. and Mrs. F. R. Anderson and children, accompanied by Mrs. Anderson's sister, Miss Gertrude Boehme, narrowly escaped serious injury as the result of an automobile accident which occured on the Bay Shore highway at about eight o'clock Saturday evening while the party was enroute to San Francisco to meet Mrs. Anderson's and Miss Boehme's mother, Mrs. Frank Boehme, who was arriving from the east.

Just north of the San Francisco airport an automobile driven by a Mr. Lovejoy of San Mateo "cut in" on the doctor's car which struck the offending vehicle squarely, practically demolishing it. No one was injured except Mrs. Anderson who suffered a badly sprained ankle. No charges were preferred against Lovejoy.

HIGH BASKETEERS DIVIDE HONORS WITH LOS GATOS

The Campbell 130 pound basketeers defeated the Los Gatos 130s 15 to 2 in a fast game last Friday night at the local gymnasium. Despite the difference in scores the game was a good one.

The unlimiteds were defeated by Los Gatos 18 to 23. The local team played an unusually good game, showing more co-operation and better team work than is the rule with this group.

This Friday night the local teams will play the Fremont aggregation here. This is the championship game for the 130s. Both 130 teams have not lost a game this season. Campbell will have to work for every score they make, but it is reported that another victory is very likely to be chalked up for Campbell.

The lineups for the two teams at the start are:

130s: Forwards, DeSelle, Buccellato, Cramer, B. Hall, Pilgrim; Centers, Johanssen, Person, Lobrovich; Guards, Raabe, Hocking, W. Hall, Mattusch, Mirassou. E. J. CAREY IS CHIEF SPEAKER AT PRUNE MEET

A prune growers meeting will be held tonight at the Campbell Union grammar school auditorium. E. J. Carey, of the state division of markets will be present and will lead a discussion on the stabalization of the prune market.

A. N. Lantz and a group of Campbell merchants and ranchers are promoting the meeting and are instrumental in obtaining Mr. Carey as a speaker. Others active in organizing the meet are Chris Anderson, S. N. Hedegard, H. M. Shadle, G. L. Husted, E. K. Clendenning, Nick Nelson and L. Hiatt.

H. M. SHADLE, LOCAL DRUGGIST, ELECTED PRESIDENT C. OF C.

At a meeting tonight the Campbell Chamber of Commerce elected Herbert M. Shadle as its president for the ensuing year. Mr. Shadle has always been an actice worker in the organization, and he takes over the direction of the local organization with the good wishes of fellow members. Rev. A. S. Buell was elected secretary, and the five directors are as follows: Dr. Frank R. Anderson, who steered the Chamber of Commerce through the storm-tossed waters of 1931 as its president; G. E. Farley, Ira Abbott, S. N. Hedegard and T. A. Cutting. The vice president and treasurer will be appointed by the board of directors.

Included in the business of the meeting was the reading of a letter from J. C. Ainsley thanking the organization for the award of a blue ribbon for the best outdoor Christmas tree this season; one from a decorating concern; and from the San Jose Deep Water Port association thanking the chamber for its co-operation, and one from the San Jose Chamber of Commerce asking for co-operation in the preparation of the celebration with which the Akron is to be greeted when the dirigible arrives here in the spring.

Dan Yeager, reporting for the fire district extension committee, stated that he had a petition practically ready to submit to the local commission, but that some backward citizen made away with it. Sufficient time to circulate another petition in time for action this year does not remain. Mr. Yeager says he will be glad to undertake the task again at a later date.

A discussion on Old Settleds day affair disclosed that a number of concessionaires are seeking to invade the town on that day. On the motion of H. C. Smith it was decided to frustrate the design of the hawkers' fraternity by requesting the county supervisors to issue no permits to balloon or candy butchers for that day in Campbell: It was also decided that Harry White be offered the opportunity of handling the noon lunch at the grammar school cafeteria.

S. N. Hedegard reported that the supervisors have appropriated $200 to help defray the expenses of the day. He also stated that plans for the old time dance to be held at the annex on the Saturday night preceding Old Settlers day promises to be a big affair. Customes, prizes and music will be features of the soree.

Further committees appointed included: Decoration of auditorium, Mrs. C. W. Sutter, Mrs. Gordon Ainsley and Antone Ferro; street decoration, Herold Morton.

G. E. Farley, C. H. Whitman and Roy Archibald were appointed a committee to communicate with the railroad commission on the matter of mail and commuter service in the event the Peninsular Railway company is Japan's Military Seizure of Shanghai Creates Dangerous Situation—China Demands Forcible Steps by League of Nations.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

MORE trouble for the world develops in the Orient. Japan, pushing her campaign to put an end to the anti-Japanese boycott in China and with the added provocation of riotous demonstrations against her Nationals in Shanghai, assembled 24 warships at that great port, and the military occupation of the city was begun by a force of about 3,000 marines. To protect the foreign settlement, four regiments of American marines and several battalions of British troops were standing by, and warships of those nations were hurrying to the scene.

Dr. W. W. Yen

Meanwhile, before the council of the League of Nations in Geneva Dr. W. W. Yen, the Chinese minister to the United States, set forth his country's side of the controversy and demanded that the council enforce the league covenant without delay. In Washington President Hoover and Secretary of State Stimson were considering what America might do in the crisis. They proposed to Great Britain that the two nations apply economic embargoes or boycotts to trade with Japan, but the MacDonald government seemed reluctant to do anything more than to dispatch warships for the protection of the international settlement.

The mayor of Shanghai had yielded to the Japanese demands, but new demands were put forward and immediately thereafter the Japanese marines were landed and proceeded to seize Chapei, the Chinese quarter. As they swept through the district they encountered the desperate resistance of several thousand Chinese troops, whereupon planes were brought into action and Chapei was thoroughly bombed. Conflagrations nearly destroyed the densely populated quarter and the fatalities were undoubtedly heavy. The bloody battle continued for hours and at one time the Chinese defenders had recaptured the important north railroad station. The Japanese had previously made their way across the Whangpoo river to Pootung, site of big Japanese cotton mills, and evidently intended to advance further into Chinese territory. Also they had shelled and occupied Woosung, the fort at the mouth of the Whangpoo. Their warships at the same time had gone up the Yangtse and three cruisers were lying off Nanking ready to shell that capital city. The Chinese Nationalist government was busily mobilizing all its strength and calling on the League of Nations for help. Chiang Kai-shek, former president, was made premier and apparently was virtually the dictator.

WHAT course the United States government would follow was uncertain, but the stiffening of its policy toward Japanese encroachments was indicated by the sending of four more warships to Chinese waters from Manila. They were destroyers and their presence was requested by Rear Admiral Y. S. Williams, commander of the Yangtse patrol.

Secretary Stimson cable to Tokyo asking the intentions of Japan and received what was called a reassuring reply, but it was stated in Washington that President Hoover was proceeding on the theory that Japan would be violating international law if she landed troops on Chinese soil for any purpose but the protection of Japanese Nationals and their property.

Russia came into the picture again when Japan asked permission to use the Chinese Eastern railway in Manchuria to transport troops to Harbin, where Chinese soldiers were marauding. Russia flatly refused the request.

WHEN the league council had heard both Dr. W. W. Yen and Naotake Sato, the Japanese delegates, Joseph Paul-Boncour, who replaced Briand as chairman, warned Japan to go easy at Shanghai. He admitted that the situation was grave. Yen not only relies on the nine-power treaty and the Kellogg pact, but he also threatened to invoke Article XV of the league covenant, which is followed by Article XVI, and the latter is the one that provides for sanctions against nations that resort to war. Furthermore, "war" might well be made to cover such operations as those of the Japanese against the so-called Chinese bandits. Some of the nations in the league are mighty timid in the matter of sanctions. Yen in his talk took a stronger position than the Chinese have previously taken before the council and his characterization of the acts of Japan was forcible and uncompromising. He complained, too, about the slowness in the formation of the league's commission of inquiry and in its getting to Manchuria, where it will not arrive until April.

HAVING abandoned the reparations conference in Lausanne, France and Great Britain are still trying to solve the problem without the aid of the United States. Premier Laval in conversation with Lord Tyrrell, British ambassador, suggested a temporary plan, calling for a moratorium on reparations until after the American elections. The moratorium would expire before December 15, when the next French payment to the United States is due.

After the French elections in May and before expiration of the new moratorium a conference would be called at Lausanne or elsewhere to negotiate a permanent agreement. Such a plan would be in line with the American attitude that Germany's reparations creditors agree among themselves before the question of adjusting war debts is broached.

ONE notable result of the whole Manchurian affair is the announced determination of Sir Eric Drummond to relinquish, early next year, his position as secretary general of the League of Nations. He has held that office since the days of the peace conference and has been a most important figure in the organization. Several governments sharply criticized the secretariat because of the extreme position taken by the league at the beginning of the Manchurian embroglio, and some diplomats accuse Sir Eric of trying to force the powers into committing themselves to action in defense of the covenant which might have led to war with Japan.

Sir Eric Drummond

Sir Eric was evidently disgusted with what he considered the weak action of the league council, especially at the Paris session, and felt that the league had suffered great loss of prestige. The other league officials do not wish to lose his services and it was considered possible they might prevail on him to change his mind about resigning. This, however, seemed likely only if the council would take a sterner attitude toward Japan.

SEVERE loss was sustained by both the business and the sporting world in the death of William Wrigley, Jr., which occurred at his winter home in Phoenix, Ariz. The Chicago capitalist, known universally as the magnate of chewing gum and the owner of the Chicago Cubs of the National Baseball league, had many other and vast interests, including banks, mines, real estate projects and the moving picture industry. Born in Germantown, Pa., 70 years ago, he ran away at the age of eleven and started business in New York as a newsboy. In 1891 he went to Chicago and formed his own company, which soon began the manufacture of chewing gum and was vastly successful.

All his varied enterprises resulted in bringing Mr. Wrigley a great fortune. Estimates by his associates ranged anywhere from $30,000,000 to $100,000,000. He was the majority stockholder in the $63,000,000 William Wrigley, Jr., company, whose earnings in 1930 exceeded $12,000,000.

WHATEVER may be the final outcome, Lieut. Thomas H. Massie of the American navy, his mother-in-law Mrs. Granville Fortescue, and E. J. Lord and Albert O. Jones, will not have to pay the death penalty for the killing of Joseph Kahahawai in Honolulu, suspected attacker of Mrs. Massie. The four defendants in the sensational case were indicted by the grand jury in Honolulu, but the charge is second degree murder, the penalty for which is 20 years to life imprisonment.

Mrs. Granville Fortescue

A transcript of proceedings of the grand jury indicated that body attempted to make a report earlier and that Circuit Judge Cristy refused it. The transcript revealed he pleaded with them to "lay aside race prejudice," to consider crimes as defined by statutes, not as defined by individuals.

Cristy repeatedly told the grand jurors that whether the accused four should be punished for killing the Hawaiian was a question for the trial jury to decide. The defense attacked the indictment on the ground that the grand jury was coerced by the judge.

CUBA'S financial affairs were aired before the senate finance committee and it was revealed that a son-in-law of President Machado had a part in a loan of $50,000,000 made by the Chase National bank to that country.

Carl J. Schmidlapp, a vice president of the bank, said $500,000 had gone to Jose Obregon as an official of the Chase company's Cuban branch for distribution to the banks that took part in the loans. He said the relative of the Cuban president had only a minor part in the negotiating the loan and denied he was employed for that purpose.

Herbert D. Brown, chief of the United States bureau of efficiency, testified that a report he had made of conditions in Panama had been changed by officials of the National City bank. He said his report had pointed out a way by which the country could avoid borrowing, but that the bank went ahead and loaned it $4,000,000.

HUEY LONG of Louisiana finally abandoned the governor's chair and went to Washington with his pink pajamas and took the oath of senator. Correspondents and visitors to the National Capital anticipate that his presence in the upper chamber will provide many interesting incidents. Before being sworn in Senator Long told interviewers that the Democratic party was sure to lose if it nominated Franklin Roosevelt for President, but could not be beaten if its choice was either Pat Harrison, Robinson or Garner. His fourth choice, he said, was Al Smith. He asserted that prohibition is not a party issue and should have no place in a platform.

Back in Louisiana Paul N. Cyr for the second time took the oath of office as governor and prepared to file suit to oust Alvin O. King, named by Long as governor when he went to Washington. Mr. King occupied the executive offices in Baton Rouge and had heavy guards stationed there.

TWICE in two days the advocates of a large navy were badly jolted. First the house naval committee agreed to shelve the Vinson ten-year warship authorization bill, though giving the measure its approval. Then the naval committee of the senate indefinitely postponed action on the Hale bill authorizing all warships needed to bring the navy up to the tonnage limit allowed by the London treaty.

CHARLES G. DAWES, president of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, and Eugene Meyer, chairman of the board, were busy getting ready to start the machinery of the huge concern, and the senate committee on banking had before it the names of two Democrats appointed members of the board by President Hoover. They were Harvey C. Couch of Arkansas and Jesse H. Jones of Texas.

Eugene Meyer

Final approval of the $500,000,000 treasury investment in the reconstruction corporation was given in both branches of congress to a report reconciling the different provisions of the senate and house.

Both political parties were supporting the next item on the President's program, which was to give aid to depositors in closed banks through a corporation to make loans on sound but unliquid assets in those institutions. Two bills were under consideration, one drafted by Republicans and providing merely for the establishment of this corporation, and the other introduced by Senator Glass directed mainly at overhauling the country's banking system.

WHAT was denominated a Communist uprising troubled the government of Salvador, but martial law was proclaimed and the revolt was quickly suppressed.

On the other side of the world in Kashmir, thousands of Moslems were reported to be looting and burning the homes of Hindus, and the maharajah appealed to the British for help.

Disturbances continued in Spain where the government was confronted with an attempt to set up a proletarian dictatorship. The decree disbanding the Jesuits of Spain was put into effect and the property of the order confiscated.

DARTMOOR penitentiary, the historic English prison near Plymouth, was the scene of a violent mutiny in which more than 300 convicts fought desperately all day with the guards and police. The rioters, who were enraged because no sugar was served with their porridge, burned the principal buildings before they were subdued. There were no fatalities, but 95 prisoners were wounded.

TO THE ORDER OF
CHAS. G. JOHNSON, STATE TREASURER, SACRAMENTO, CALIFORNIA.
PACIFIC GAS AND ELECTRIC COMPANY
President
SECRETARY.

Sacramento, Feb. 1—California's treasury is $3,136,313.68 richer today. The Pacific Gas and Electric company has just paid this amount to State Treasurer Chas. G. Johnson with one of the largest checks ever received by the department. It covers the second installment of the utility's taxes for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1931, and completes payment of a levy totaling $6,272,627.36. This sum, representing seven and a half per cent of the company's gross receipts for the period makes the P. G. & E. the second largest taxpayer in California. The Southern Pacific company alone overtops it.

In addition to the state tax of $6,272,627.36 the Pacific Gas and Electric company has paid more than two million dollars in other taxes, bringing the year's outlay for taxation to $8,459,415.98. Payments to the federal government for 1931 amounted to $1,678,672.31; various city and county taxes totaled $442,516.54, and the state gasoline tax took $62,386 more. The balance was made up of miscellaneous levies.

This total of $8,459,415.98 represents more than ten per cent of the company's gross revenue during the year. Its payment, utility officials pointed out to State Treasurer Johnson means that all proceeds of P. G. and E. operations for one day out of every ten or for close to six weeks out of the year go exclusively for taxes.

As an indication of the size of the sum just paid to the state, Treasurer Johnson stated that it would, even if California had not other revenue, be sufficient to finance many of the state activities. It would pay salaries and running expenses of both houses of the legislature, State Supreme Court, District Court of Appeal, State-County Superior Courts (state contribution), Department of Penology, all state prisons and correctional schools, state institutions for women, narcotic enforcement and crime detection. In addition, it would defray all the expenses of the offices of Governor, Lieutenand Governor, State Treasurer, Secretary of the State, Franchise Tax Commissioner, State Board of Equalization, and the Department of Public Health.

In fact, after providing for all of these, the payment would still leave a substantial amount for other expenditures.

Miss Mary Rodeck is recovering from her illness which confined her to her home all last week.

The Campbell Union high school closed school today at 2:30 to let the students take a trip to the snow in the Santa Cruz mountains.

Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Knappen spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Knappen at Marysville. They were accompanied upon their return by Mrs. S. Major King, who had spent the past five weeks there with her cousins, during the convalescence of Mr. Knappen, who recently underwent a major operation.

The Best Security for Your Funds

Building and Loan, it has often been said, is a real home industry.

The associations of California—of which the San Jose Pacific is one of the oldest and largest—purchase no foreign securities; they do not go afield for their investments; their funds flow almost entirely through one channel—the residential loan. Every one of the loans is secured by a first lien, and therefore back of each loan and back of your funds is a tangible asset, the very foundation of investment security.

The American home is the very basis of our liberty and existence. If the American home and the investment secured by it are not sound it is asked, then what is sound?

Rural Carriers Hold Meeting Here Sunday

Thirty-five rural mail carriers and their families gathered in the grammar school cafeteria Sunday, where they had a luncheon and a meeting.

At the meeting, according to Dan Yeager, secretary of the Santa Clara County local, they prepared a protest to the King bill which proposes placing rural carriers under contract and robbing them of their civil service status. There is little chance that the measure will be adopted, however, as the postal department has turned thumbs down on the idea, according to recent information received by Mr. Yeager.

A number of rural carriers from other locals were visitors at the luncheon and the meeting.

"Colonial" Dinner At Local Church Set for Feb. 21

Hear ye, hear ye! all ye good housewives and men of ye Colonies! A new-fangled idea—dinner at ye hour of half-past six in the evening. It will be served at ye Methodist Meeting House by ye dames and ye daughters, and the price of ye dinner—mark ye, dinner, not supper,—will be one-half of one silver dollar. Besides the good dinner, which will be a credit to ye rare guests, George and Martha Washington, there will be a great pantomime and proper play acting, and music of ye olden days, and games to make the hearts and the eyes sparkle. All for ye same one-half of one silver dollar!

"Modern Art Since The World War," C. W. Club Topic

Mrs. Freeman L. Howes, chairman of the committee from the Country Woman's club, working with the Chamber of Commerce committees announced prospective plans for the afternoon program of February 22, which provide for both pleasant and rainy weather.

Mrs. Purmort announced a change in the program by which Men's Night has been advanced to February 15 and the topic set for that date will be presented on March 22.

The program was opened with two vocal solos by Mrs. Lillian Roberts with Miss Ora Jasper accompanist, both members of the grammar school faculty. Her selections were "Just Wearyin' For You" and "Sunbeams."

Daniel Mendelowitz, art instructor at the San Jose State College, was the speaker for the afternoon, the subject being, "Modern Art Since the World War".

Mr. Mendelowitz developed his subject by showing the changes in style of painting during the last century, by steroptican slides. He stated that for several centuries following the Renaissance artist were copying the works of the great painters of that period. But with the changing conditions in the world and the new ideas developing, artists began looking for new styles of expression. The pictures he showed were the work of French painters of the past hundred years. The first ones pictured Greek and Roman mythological characters, which closely resembled sculptured figures. A little later the same classic lines were used but real people were posed.

Corot was one of the first artists to paint nature and the first to go out of doors to do his work. Milet advanced quite a step by portraying in his pictures the peasant life of the people.

Monet was one of the first of the school of impressionists producing his paintings with rough broken surfaces and outlines. Further changes were noted and then the first of the cubists startled the world a few years ago with his subjects created in geometrical forms. Numbers of imitations sprang up, but the public did not favor their style and it has been succeeded by more pleasing types, but many very different from preceeding periods and commonly designated modernistic. Many of these are used on magazine covers and high class advertising.

The committee for the afternoon included Mrs. Neil Best, Mrs. Ira Abbott, Mrs. Frank Cutting, Mrs. Emily Duncan and Mrs. Guy Farley.

ACCIDENT HALTS WEEK-END TRIP

The Chevrolet coupe belonging to Willis Noethig is in the repair shop as a result of what might have been a serious accident on Hamilton avenue Saturday noon.

Noething was driving towards San Jose on Hamilton avenue when a car drove out from the service station directly in front of him. Noethig tried to avoid the other car but skidded on the slippery pavement, turned around several times and struch a telephone pole on the left side of the highway.

The Chevrolet was considerably damaged and had to be towed to a garage. The man in the other machine did not stop to see the results

Noethig and his companion Jack Murdock, were starting on a trip to Atascadero. They escaped without a scratch.

Union District Club Plans Program For Sat., Feb. 13

The We and Our Neighbors club will sponsor an interesting program at the club house Saturday evening, February 13.

Mrs. D. V. Laughlin of San Jose will give an illustrated lecture on the South Sea Islands. Mrs. Laughlin has given several such lectures throughout the county, where they have been highly successful and entertaining.

Following the lecture cards will be enjoyed, and candy will be sold by girls in costums of the South Sea Islands. The proceeds from the evening's entertainment will be given to the scholarship loan fund of the Santa Clara County Federation of Women's clubs.

Mrs. E. H. Todd is in charge of the affair.

Mrs. Horace Lea Hostess To Club

Mrs. Horace Lea entertained the members of her bridge club at her home on First street last Wednesday evening. After a pleasant evening of bridge a delicious lunch was served by the hostess. Mrs. Ethan Lanphear of Saratoga won first prize.

The members present were Mesdames Frank Anderson, Wm. Ohlen, Bert Young, Earl Young, Ethan Lanphear, Julius Bachman, Richard Knappen and the hostess.

Pundita Circle Observes "Guest Day" Wednesday

The Pundita Circle observed one of its annual social events Wednesday when its members invited guests to share the afternoon's pleasure with them.

The social half of the library had been most attractively arranged with the setting for a one-act play. This with quantities of greenery and spring flowers made a very cozy room.

Mrs. George Page, president of the hostess club, very graciously welcomed the guests among whom were Mrs. Frederick Battee, president, and Mrs. Milton Francis, recording secretary of the county federated clubs.

She then introduced Miss Katherine Wood, a recent addition to the roll of members of Pundita, who played two groups of piano solos, "Arabesque" by Leschetizki, "Why," Schumann; "Soiree de Vienne," Schubert Liszt.

Miss Anne Schulte read a very beautiful allegorical play, the work of Mary Helen Davis, "A Slave With Two Faces." Miss Schulte's interpretation of the play and rendition of the several characters was very fine.

The play, "The Burglar," enacted by a group of ladies, created much amusement. The cast included Mesdames Alpha Merriman, Ray Wood, G. E. Jeffers, Worthin Grattan and John Keesaman, and "Lotus," the mystery character, with Mrs. T. A. Cutting, coach.

P. T. A. Plans Card Party for Saturday, Feb. 6

Another delightful card party to raise funds to help worthy students will be given by the Campbell high school P. T. A. Saturday, February 6.

This time the grammar school kindergarten room and cafeteria will be used for that affair, so the heating of the rooms and the serving of refreshments may be more satisfactorily handled.

A variety of useful and fancy prizes have been donated by friends. The committee in charge are: Tables and cards, Mrs. S. N. Hedegard; refreshments, Mr. D. H. Cramer and Mrs. L. Shank; prizes, Mrs. Robert Lear; tickets, Mrs. A. C. Dart.

Rev. A. S. Buell attended a meeting of the county Methodist conference which was held at the Calgary Church in San José Monday.

Harry C. Smith and Dr. F. R. Anderson attended the meeting of the County Consolidated Chamber of Commerce in Los Gatos today.

A regular meeting of the Union Home and School club was held this afternoon at the school.

The Cambrian service station and store is being moved several feet back to make way for the new highway, eliminating the dangerous curves on the Los Gatos, San Jose road. The Hanger house and other buildings have already been moved.
